Welcome to my installation at Roberto's Restaurant as part of the annual City Wide Open Studios in New Haven, CT.

Street Perspectives:

So I know the street theme is one big cliché in the photo world. Yes, it's been done to death. So why am I showing it? I like the idea that I might have a vision of the world that others might say "kewl". That's it.

Oh, and all these images were shot on film and printed with wet chemistry. That must count for something in today's fast, easy, manipulated digital world, right?

Regards, Art.
